

Martina Paukova shows us utopian living

Known for her feel-good vector illustrations, Martina injects personality in a way that photography just can't do. Like a modern-day MC Escher, her colourful, quirky perspectives move and change, yet make perfect sense. Elements slot together like magic, while also working on their own.

Melbourne design studio, Cornwell engaged Martina for a suite of illustrations to advertise Milton Green, a new business precinct in Brisbane. This vibrant and natural environment fosters collaboration and provides a great work-life balance and Martina created a picturesque utopia to fit the brief! Her unique style brings something fresh to the property field and injects a sense of community to this new business hub.

If you would like Martina's vision on your next project, give us a shout and we can sort it all out.
